

Why did the Ocean Roar?

Sea Creatures by Sol Reeve

MoCL Window Gallery, 768 Yates Street, Victoria BC

July 19 – August 7, 2021

Green fauna and flora, 2021
Miscellaneous silicone and plastic-ware
220 x 80 mm

Green and blue fauna, 2021
Silicone and plastic toys
150 x 180 mm

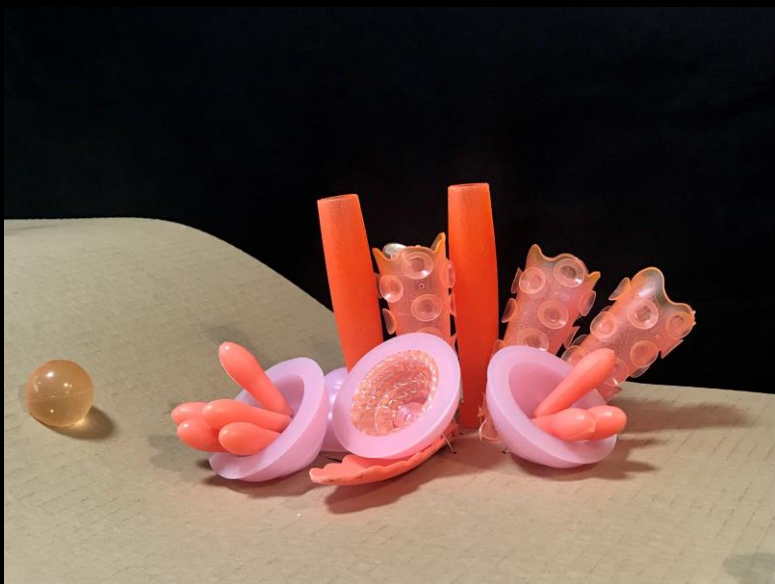

Turquoise fauna, 2021
Microfibre
120 x 1300 mm

White flora and fauna, 2021
Miscellaneous plastic-ware
260 x 180 mm

Orange and pink flora, 2021
Miscellaneous plastic-ware
210 x 180 mm

Pink fauna and flora, 2021
Plastic party-ware
300 x 150 mm

Deep Sea Creatures, 2020
Synthetic baby wool, plastic zippers, safety tape
300 x 150 mm

Why did the Ocean Roar? is a diorama of sea creatures made of repurposed plastic consumer items. The original objects were found in various sections of thrift stores including toys, kitchenware, and party supplies. A good subtitle for this exhibition might be “you can’t make this up” because most of the original objects are barely functional for their intended purpose, and in some instances their function is completely inexplicable.

When I turned them into art I wanted to show both their alluring beauty and their perversity.

Sol Reeve, 2021